

This Week's Climate Policy Update | October 3, 2022

October 3, 2022

Reading Time : 1 min

By: Kenneth J. Markowitz, Stacey H. Mitchell, Christopher A. Treanor

As Congress headed into recess, it sought to wrap up loose ends, including passing permitting reform. However, Sen. Joe Manchin (D-WV) removed his permitting reform language from a continuing resolution and Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer (D-NY) reiterated his commitment to passing legislation to expedite the permitting process of energy and minerals projects. House Republicans released a platform ahead of the 2022 midterm elections, highlighting domestic energy production and climate regulatory reform. Texas is seeking authority over its carbon dioxide wells, following suit of North Dakota and Wyoming. As Gov. Glenn Youngkin (R-VA) seeks to remove Virginia from the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative (RGGI), a public comment period regarding the regulatory action opened this week.

To read Akin Gump's most recent climate policy update, please click here.

Categories

© 2025 Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld LLP. All rights reserved. Attorney advertising. This document is distributed for informational use only; it does not constitute legal advice and should not be used as such. Prior results do not guarantee a similar outcome. Akin is the practicing name of Akin Gump LLP, a New York limited liability partnership authorized and regulated by the Solicitors Regulation Authority under number 267321. A list of the partners is available for inspection at Eighth Floor, Ten Bishops Square, London E1 6EG. For more information about Akin Gump LLP, Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld LLP and other associated entities under which the Akin Gump network operates worldwide, please see our Legal Notices page.